The link between population and championship titles

OVERVIEW

POPULATION AND SPORTING SUCCESS

One would assume that the greater population a place has the more sporting championships it would have. However this isn't always the case so I thought it would be interesting to examine the link between population and their success.

THE DATA

To get a list of all professional sports teams in The United States and Canada I found a dataset on Kaggle, from there I used that data aswell as other data I found on the internet, like population and championships, I was able to build my own dataset.
